Non-Executive Business Item: Councillor Pauline Coakley Webb

Amendment in the name of Councillor Brian Coleman

Supporting 'mixed' and sustainable high streets through planning

Replace paragraph 2 with;

Council notes that with the rise of Internet shopping that no change is not an option . Council encourages the conversion of empty shops and offices into much needed homes. Council abhors the patronising attitude that some businesses are somehow better than others and welcome all legal businesses to our Borough.

Substantive Non-Executive Business Item to read;

Council notes that on 9th May 2013 the Government laid before Parliament The Town and Country Planning (General Permitted Development) (Amendment) (England) Order 2013 which came into force on 30th May 2013 and changed the rules on high street planning without any parliamentary debate.

Council notes that with the rise of Internet shopping that no change is not an option . Council encourages the conversion of empty shops and offices into much needed homes. Council abhors the patronising attitude that some businesses are somehow better than others and welcome all legal businesses to our Borough.

Council notes that LB Southwark is now using Article 4 in planning legislation to control the proliferation of betting shops, payday lenders and pawnbrokers in their high streets in order to ensure there is a balanced mix of businesses in their Borough, and to help people avoid 'debt traps'. Under restrictions LB Southwark have introduced, the type of business - except where the current use class is already an A2 business - operating on a site cannot be changed without submitting a new planning application to the council.

Council notes the growing number of betting shops, payday lenders and pawnshops in particular local areas, including in Hendon Central, and requests that Cabinet investigate ways of using Article 4 to restrict permitted development to ensure our local high streets are mixed, sustainable and are not encouraging local people into the trap of debt.
